CONTENTS.

PAGE

Introductory Statement. 1

An Examination of Phrenology; in two Lectures, delivered to the Students of the Columbian College, D. C., Feb. 1837. By Thomas Sewall, Professor of Anatomy and Physiology. 12

An Examination of the same. Second edition. . . . 441

Phrenology Vindicated, and Anti-Phrenology Unmasked. By Charles Caldwell. 12

A Phrenological Analysis of Conversion. 19

Pathological Fact, Confirmatory of Phrenology. . . . 24

Phrenology in Germany. 27

George Combe, Esq. 31

Phrenology: its Origin and Early History, with a consideration of some of the more common objections to it. . . 33

Phrenology in Great Britain: including Dr. Spurzheim's labours; Notice of Phrenological Societies and books; Testimonials of Medical and other Distinguished Men—among whom are Archbishop Whately; Dr. Welsh; Hon. D. G. Halyburton, P. M.; Prof. Hunter; Hon. Judge Crampton; Dr. J. Mackintosh, Surgeon to the Ordnance Department, North Britain, &c.; Dr. John Elliotson, F. R. S., President of the Medical, Chirurgical, and of the London Phrenological Societies, Professor of Medicine, &c. &c. in the University of London; Dr. James Johnson, Physician Extraordinary to the King, Editor of the Medico-Chirurgical Review, &c. 39

Phrenological Developments and Character of the celebrated Indian Chief and Warrior, Black Hawk. With cuts. . 51

The Reception of the American Phrenological Journal. . 61

Application of Phrenology to Criticism, and the Analysis of Character, in a Letter to the Editor. 65

Questions which are considered as settled by Phrenology. . 72

PAGE

Phrenology in France: including a brief history of the science, and the opinions of Andral, Broussais, Cloquet, and Vimont, all professors in the medical faculty of Paris. . . 74

Communication from "Medicus" on the importance of a general diffusion of a knowledge of Anatomy and Physiology. 79

Letter from a Correspondent, concerning the religious character of the Journal. 83

Character of Le Blanc, the murderer of Judge Sayre and family, of Morristown, N. J. With cuts. 89

Philosophical Analysis of Cautiousness. 97

Interesting Phrenological Fact, from a Correspondent. . . 102

Phrenological Developments and Character of Tardy, the Pirate. With cuts. 104

Association of Ideas, Analysed, on Phrenological Principles. 113

Lectures of Mr. George Combe, in Boston and New York, with a brief History of Phrenology, and its present state in the former place. 118

Mr. George Combe on the size of Sir Walter Scott's brain. . 129

Cases of Spectral Illusion confirmatory of Phrenology. . 135

Letter, addressed to Rev. Thomas Chalmers, D. D., of Scotland. 142

Utility of Phrenology. 144

Same subject continued. 161

Same subject continued. 249

An Address, delivered at the Anniversary Celebration of the Birth of Spurzheim, and the Organisation of the Boston Phrenological Society, January 1st, 1838. By Elisha Bartlett, M. D. 148

Case of Monomania. 155

Fallacy of some Common Objections against Phrenology. . 174

Two Letters, addressed to George Combe, Esq., on the Functions of the Organs of Locality and Wit. 177

Remarks on the possibility of increasing the development of the Cerebral Organs by adequate exercise of the Mental Organs. By Andrew Combe, M. D. 183

Same subject continued. 267

Application of Phrenology to Self-Culture. 191

PAGE

Phrenology in New York. 195
On the Primary Function of Wonder. By M. B. Sampson. 201
Phrenological Developments of Prince Talleyrand. . . 211
Application of Phrenology to the Analysis of the Character of Shakspeare's Iago. 212
Letter from a Correspondent. 228
Thoughts on Education. 231
Elementary Principles of Phrenology. 236
Remarks upon the Scripture Doctrine of Regeneration. . 253
On Duelling. 263
Phrenological Developments and Character of William Miller. 272
Heads of our Great Men. 286
On the Primary Function of the Organ of Ideality. By M. B. Sampson. 297
Testimonials in favour of Phrenology. 308
Woman in her Social and Domestic Character. . . . 316
Letter from Professor Caldwell. 324
Elementary Principles of Phrenology. No. 2. . . . 330
Phrenology in the University of Edinburgh. . . . 336
Phrenology in relation to Fatalism, Necessity, and Human Responsibility. By Joseph A. Warne, A. M. . . 345
Same subject continued. 478
On the nature of the Evidence by which the Function of different parts of the Brain may be established. By George Combe. 352
The Temperaments. 361
President Shannon's Address. 369
Fruits of Hostile Misrepresentation against Phrenology. . 379
Character of Chief Justice Marshall. 382
Thoughts on the most Effective Condition of the Brain as the Organ of the Mind, and on the modes of attaining it. By Charles Caldwell, M. D. 393
Remarks on the Human Skull. 430
Pathological Fact confirmatory of Phrenology. . . . 435
Phrenological Developments of Fieschi. 438
Case in which Character was inferred from Cerebral Development. 455

PAGE

Phrenology in the Family; or the Utility of Phrenology in Early Domestic Education. By Joseph A. Warne, A. M. 458

Remarks on the Organ of Watchfulness. 467

MISCELLANEOUS NOTICES.

Notice of Mr. Jones's Work—Dr. Hamilton's Discourse—Correspondents—Mr. Combe's Lectures. 64

Extract of a letter from George Combe, Esq. 96

Mr. Combe's Lectures in Philadelphia. 128

Southern Medical and Surgical Journal—Dr. Barber in Scotland—Phrenology in Buffalo and Syracuse, N. Y.—Mr. Combe's Lectures in Philadelphia. 157

Death of Broussais—Phrenological Society in Buffalo, N. Y.—Mr. Combe's Lectures in Philadelphia—Acknowledgment of books, &c. 199

Dr. Buchanan in Alabama—Interesting Fact—Phrenology in Ohio—Phrenology in Philadelphia—Officers of the New York Phrenological Society—Enlargement of the Journal—Morton's Crania Americana. 241

Mr. Combe's Second Course of Lectures—Lectures of Rev. J. A. Warne—Dr. Elder's Address. 294

Dr. Buchanan in Florida—The American Journal of the Medical Sciences—Knickerbocker—National Magazine, and Republican Review, and Boston Quarterly Review, on Phrenology—Dr. Elder's Address. 338

Crania Americana—Eclectic Journal of Medicine—Phrenology in Wheeling, Va. 385

Phrenology in France—Dr. Vimont on Comparative Phrenology. 487